LEARNING OUTCOMES

1. The primary aim is that the students learn a legal method that allows them to know, handle and face the court proceedings basically.
2. At the same time, in the English taught group, as the entire course is taught in English, students are expected to acquire basic legal knowledge in this language and a practice of the language in general.

3. After having taken the recommended courses, once the fundamental institutions of the subject-matter included in the respective general parts are known, it is pursued that, by taking the Administrative Court Procedure, the students end up with a theoretical and practical knowledge of the subject from the perspective of this procedural field, as necessary as it is unknown for citizens and not specialized legal professionals, but that can, nevertheless, become very present in anybody's life. Together with the training that the students already have in public Law, along with their knowledge of the civil procedure, the study of the essential aspects of the so-called Contentious-Administrative Procedure is added.
4. The objectives of the course are, consequently, to strengthen the basic general knowledge of the aforementioned disciplines and to apply in a more specific way the legal method in which the students have taken the first steps through the previous Administrative Law courses. This is intended for the acquisition by the students of:
- The basic concepts, categories and general legal techniques of the subject matters of the syllabus to complete their legal training.
 - The knowledge of the sources of Contentious-Administrative Procedural Law, including its interpretation and application.
 - The concrete knowledge of the legal regime of the activity of judges and courts of the jurisdiction for judicial review, from an organizational and competence point of view, as well as well as the parties involved in the legal proceedings.
 - The knowledge of all the stages of the ordinary procedure, the abbreviated procedure and the special procedures, as well as the appeals system, the enforcement of judgments and the interim measures.
 - The necessary knowledge for the resolution of practical cases relying on the correct understanding and the use of legal reasoning.

ASSESSMENT METHODS (Instruments, criteria and percentages)

ORDINARY EXAMINATION DIET

Evaluation in the continuous assessment system consists of two parts:

1. Supplementary activities carried out during the course (practical assignments, work associated with seminars, online activities, tests, etc.), which represent a minimum of 30% of the overall grade.
2. A face-to-face final exam of the course, representing a maximum of 70% of the grade, the passing of which is required to pass the course. The Exam may consist of any of a variety of methods at the discretion of the teacher involved (essay-type written or oral exam, questionnaire, etc., or a combination of them), that must be specified during the course and, in any case, in the exam announcement itself.

The overall grade will be the result of the application of the following rules:

1. A weighted average formula will be applied to both parts of supplementary activities and final exam.
2. For the formula to be applicable, it is necessary for the students to get a minimum 5/10 score in the final exam. Otherwise, the student will get a failing grade with the score obtained in said final exam as the final overall grade.
3. Exceptionally, at the discretion of the teacher and depending on the results obtained by the student in the supplementary activities, it will be possible to apply the weighted average formula to both parts when the results of the final exam have reached, at least, a 4/10 score.

EXTRAORDINARY EXAMINATION DIET

In the Extraordinary Assessment session (resit examination), the evaluation is carried out through a single Exam in which the two parts of the course are assessed:

- Final exam, by any of the methods described above for the continuous assessment system and with the same criteria (maximum 70%).
- Case study or practical exercise exam or exam with practical type questions (minimum 30% of the grade), aimed at facilitating the assessment of the procedural or experimental competencies that correspond to the practical side of the course.

The same criteria established for the ordinary session are applied to pass the Exam in the extraordinary assessment session. In the event that the outcome of the supplementary activities' assessment during the course is a grade equal to or higher than 5/10, that grade may be kept for this extraordinary session and replace the one corresponding to the practical part of the exam.

SINGLE FINAL ASSESSMENT (evaluación única final)

Students who cannot comply with the requirements of the continuous assessment system may qualify for the single assessment system, in accordance with article 8 of the "Regulation on the Evaluation and Grading of Students of the University of Granada". Those who qualify for this type of assessment in accordance with the said regulation will have to request it to the head of the Department in the first two weeks from the date of enrollment, alleging and proving the reasons that justify not being able to follow the continuous assessment system. The rules for the extraordinary assessment session will apply to this single final assessment, thus consisting of a single exam made up of the indicated parts and with the grading rules set out above.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Publication of grades:

- It is recommended that, before the Final Exam takes place, each teacher proceed to publish the grades received by the students in the Supplementary Activities section.
- After the final exam takes place, the responsible teacher for each group will publish the score received in it expressed numerically over 10 (0 - 10), as well as the overall grades. After the review period, in accordance with what is established in the Regulation on the Evaluation and Grading of Students of the University of Granada, each teacher responsible for a group will transfer the final grades to the corresponding Grade Report.

Exam review: The eventual review of the exams will be announced and conducted by the teacher responsible for each group within the terms and conditions required by the regulations of the University of Granada.

Alternative exams: In relation to the eventual holding of Alternative Exams within the framework of courses subject to the Final Exam regime, the student must comply in his/her application with the Regulation on the Evaluation and Grading of Students of the University of Granada and with the procedure provided for this purpose by the Department.
